The while the Advance is worth $15,000 and the intant is about the host of the three yearolds, with Ormondale and Whimsteal not out of the reckening by any means, but if Rurgomaster and Rohemian had remained in training the Filigrane colt would not have in selling Accountant, W. H. Brown makes the first move toward getting rid of the big stable left to him by his brother, the late S. S. Brown. He is not a tuff enthusiast, in the strictest sense of the word, and has had no time this year to devote to racing. It is understood that all the horses belonging to him will be sold at public auction in the near future. Senorita Stud, also his property, may be Senorita Stud, also his property, may be parted with, as it is said that Clarence H. Mackay has an option on the breeding establishment for $300,090. Accountant won the Withers Stakes at Belmont Park from Bohe-mian in a very fast mile. Later he was defeated by Whimsical in the Jockey Club Weight for Age Race, but on Wednesday he won a handleap for three-year-olds with top weight in such an impressive manner that Brady concluded to get the colt at any price. Neither Whimsical nor Ormondale is eligible to start in the Tidal, but Ormondale will probably go to the post in the Realization. Some of the best known horses in the Brown stable that will be sold are Agile, Effall, Glenecho, King Henry and Sue Smith, Broomstick was retired to the stud last fall. It is possible that Robert Tucker, who has trained the Brown horses for a number of years, will race in his own name and colors.

Jockey Frank O'Neill, who is under contract to Fred Burlew, and has ridden on the local tracks for several seasons with much success, has decided to retire. He will not ride after July 1, but will go into par.nership with Burlew as a public trainer. O'Neill has fallen off in his work to a marked degree lately, and has become discouraged. He said yesterday that he knew he could not do himself justice and that it was useless to continue. Two years ago the combination of Newton Bennington, Burlew and O'Neill was one of the most powerful on the turf. Many races were won, including some of the richest stakes, but recently Bennington decided to sell out nearly all of his horses, and with the withdrawal of O'Neill the combination now passed out of existence. Without a star jockey it remains to be seen how Burlew and O'Neill will prosper, for a crack rider is half the game nowadays.

How much weight can Lady Amelia pick up and win? The famous mare was never better than at present. She has won four consecu-tive races under all kinds of burdens. On May 21 she came home with 130 pounds. Two days later she scored with 137, while on June 7 she was an easy winner with 138. Yesterday she handled 142 pounds and won just as easily as in the other events. In yesterday's race the Ben Strome mare conceded twenty-one pounds on the scale to Prince Hamburg, twenty-three to Handzarra, thirty-seven to Monet, forty-four to Bohemia, thirty-eight to Zienap, fifty-three to Merit and Diamond Flush. There was so much confidence in her ability to win again, even under this crushing impost, that the public and the plungers literally backed her off the boards. The ring lost heavily on the result of the race as Prince Hamburg was also plunged on in the place books. Sim Deimel and Alex Shields bet eavily on the winner

The first four races, in fact, were body blows for the books. Benevolent was backed by the public in the second race, while Klingsor who ran second, was heavily played both ways by the smart set. The Western crowd picked up a bundle on Lancastrian to show. In the third race a fortune was wagered on Logistilla, but the books paid off with some of the money placed on Miss Crawford and Coy Maid. The latter was said to be ready, and the wise crowd in the clubhouse proceeded to back her from 10 down to 4. But the Kingston mare ran as if she needed a couple of races.

The books were hit hard when Adoration won the Clover Stakes. The Ornament filly carried so much money that the books wiped off the price from their slates entirely when he bugle sounded, and some of the betting agents could not get their commission on at all. Killiecrankie did not attract the fancy of the big operators, but the public dropped a lot of small wagers on her.

ecorching in the fifth race, as big money went in on both Angler and Ostrich, the for-mer closing the choice at 7 to 5, while Ostrich was beaten from 3 down to 13 to 5. But this time the books hung onto this wealth, for neither of these horses was placed. Red Friar went begging at 5 to 1, because of a wild rumor that he was on the verge of a breakdown. It was about an even break for the books in the last race. There was a plunge on Oran, the clubhouse and the Newcastle Stable combination backing him to the extent of thousands. Yet there was enough of a play on Bat Masterson to eat up the money bet on Oran. Oran might have won at that, if he had not run out on the turn. Jesse Lewisohn cinched matters by playing Masterson a place. The Schwartz brothers wagered $20,000 on this colt, who was recently purchased by them from John E. Madden.
The stewards of the Jockey Club have sent a notice to each racing association calling at-tention to the rule which prohibits collusion and intimidation in bidding up and claiming horses in selling races. At Belmont Park a certain horseman who has made a business of claiming platers closed an agreement with a prominent owner to leave his horses alone in future for a consideration. This Jockey Club, with the result that needed reforms in this direction will be put into effect. It is a common occurrence that persons with a private grudge take pleasure in bidding up the horses of rivals to square accounts. It has also been a custom to put in friendly "claims," simply as a matter of protection. Such methods, according to the Jockey Club, Eugenia Butter | 116 Oliver | 117 Non Tromp | 116 Oliver | 117 Non Tromp | 118 Amson | 111 Non Son | 114 Non Tromp | 115 Non T are not sportsmanlike, and are wholly at variance with the rules governing selling

While the betting on the Clover Stakes was under way a red headed, hatless and coatless individual, carrying a bookmaker's slate bearing the name of M. Marks, rushed slate bearing the name of M. Marks, rushed out of the ring on to the lawn and made a bee line for the judges' stand. He looked at the bulletin board and then dashed for the paddock, where he gesticulated in apparent frenzy. Then he sprinted back over the lawn with a crowd in his wake. It turned out that the man, who was a runner for the book-maker, was trying to find out the names of the added starters, which in his absence had been passed around the ring as usual. Previous winners of the Clover Stakes were Fides, Reclare, Correction, Mount Vernon, Raindrop, Kentigerna, Ridicule, Axiom, Winged Foot, Fayida, High Degree, Oneck

Queen, Sweet Lavender, Disadvantage, Martie Lewis, Contentious, Chrysalis and Transmute. The race was worth $3,000, of which the winner's share was $2,590.

While Miller won two races and also finished second, he lost a barrel of money for his followers when he was unplaced with James N., Miss Crawford and Angeler. He was clearly outridden by the negro L. Williams

She was begren diven to 15 to 20 and then proceeded to win live a 1 to 10 shot. Miller made all the running with her, but eased the page of the end, where she beat 11. Whitney's Prince Hamburg, 5 to 3, by a length in 100 4-5. The timer's Stable's Renevotent, 7 to 5 favorite, showed the way to a poor lot in the second race, at a mile and a sixteenth.

The books elenged up on the fifth race, as both Angler, the favorite, and Ostrich, second choice, did not get any part of the money, P. J. Davyer's Red Friar, 5 to 1, took the race in a whipping finish by helf a length in 1.54.

The last event, for two year-olds, five furlongs, was a two horse affair as far as the betting went. The Ormondale Stable's Gran was pounded down to 7 to 10. Bat Masterson, having the rail, closed at 11 to 5. Oran booked up with him without delay and they raced like a team clear up to the last hundred yards, where, under the whip, Masterson drew away slightly and won in a red hot drive by a head in 10. Hackett and Allen Retain Manhattan Championship in Tennis Doubles.

Perfect team play on the part of Harold H. Hackett and John Appleton Allen resulted at the published story that he may have to have his injured finger, the one he cut while opening a soda water bottle in Brooklyn, amputated. He says that there is not a word of truth in the report. He expects the wound to be completely healed in a few days. In fact, he says, it is progressing so well that he knocked a few balls over the net at Wimbledon yesterday for luck. He intends to stay over for the championship games, but he will not play again till next year. yesterday in their successfully defending their holding of the Manhattan championtheir holding of the Mannattan Champion-hip lawn tennis doubles. This was the holdover challenge match of the tourna-ment on the courts of the New York Lawn Tennis Club, 123d street and Manhattan avenue. The old Yele pair defeated their challengers, Frederick B. Alexander and Frederick G. Anderson, by the score of 6-2, 6-4 and 6-4.

The invader did not finish the race. The Corons gets an allow ance of about 2 minutes to seconds from the Elmina over the course, so that with that allowance figured the Elmina has a safe margin.

The Rainbow and Yankee sailed together their class, and the Rainbow won by a In their class, and the Rainbow won by a minutes 46 seconds, making good gains on each leg of the course Commodore and Mrs Vanderbite satted on the yacht. Harry L. Maxwell handled the Yankee as usual and Mrs Maxwell was on board. It was her first appearance on her husband's yacht. A special race was arranged with the Vigilant, owned by W. E. Iselin, and the two 70-footers. The Vigilant beat the Rainbow only I minute 28 seconds and loses on corrected time. The Vigilant made a good gain reaching, but lost all but 22 seconds before the wind and she could only beat the Rainbow I minute 6 seconds on the wind.

The Westamoe, sailed by H. F. Leggett, The Westamoe, sailed by H. F. Leggett, and Neola, sailed by E. D. King, made a very interesting contest to the second mark, which they turned only four seconds apart. Then turning to windward the Weetamoe made big gains and won the race by 7 minutes 26 seconds.

turning to windward the Weetamoe made big gains and won the race by 7 minutes 22 seconds. Six of the one design 30 footers started, and the Adelaide, sailed by George Adee, won, with the Atair second and Dahinda third. The Neola II. fouled the mark and withdrew.

The regatta was for the spring cups and the yachts were to have started at noon, but at that hour there was no wind and the racers were drilling about on the Bound. Now and then a light sir would fill the sails of one yacht, and then just when all thought it would freshen it would die way. It was teasing and the prospects were not encouraging. About 1:30 a southwest air drew out of Glen Cove, and Chairman H. de B. Parsons of the committee at once realized that this had come to stay and signalied the courses. All the schooners and sloops except the 30-footers were to go first to a mark off Prospect Point, then to a mark near Green's Ledge and then back to the starting line near Week's Point. The first leg of this course was north by east 1, east 31, miles, the second east-northeast 104, miles and then southwest 1/2 west 105, miles, making 28½, nautical miles. The 30-footers went 18½, miles.

The warning signal was made at 1:40 o'clock, the preparatory at 1:45. The schooners were the first sent off. Capt. Dennis berthed the Elmina well, and breaking out a balloon jib topsail at the line crossed with booms to starboard at 1:50:51. The Invader and Corona were handicapped. They were timed as starting at 1:57, their actual times were: Invader, 1:57:28: Corona, 1:57:31. The Vigilant except of the course south west and the sound of the Yan this afternoon that unless something was done to make No. 4 course better they would look in vain for a Cornell crew in the race. The trouble is that the lane, as laid out, brings the crew in No. 4 too close to the pier. The courses are designed to be fifty feet apart, and so they are, but course 4 takes in the pier, which is thirty feet across. The crew that had to go so close to a pier would be delayed to such an extent that they could not hope to win in a close race.

This morning when the Cornell crew rowed over the course in company with the other boats of the squad, Courtney, as usual, took the path that his boat will have to use if it starts in the race. The shell was caught in the peculiar eddy that swirls out from the bridge and twisted about so that it was many the peculiar eddy that swirls out from the bridge and twisted about so that it was many minutes before the men could get going properly again. After the crews got back to the float Courtney said:

"I certainly will not stand for that. There is no reason why the courses should be laid out in that manner. I hardly know what to do. Probably I shall call the attention of Judge Irvine of Cornell, who is one of the stewards, to this and see what they purpose doing. The selfsame thing caused us to loss a race against the Yale freshmen here on the course that although we were a length ahead when we started under the bridge we were behind when the crews came out. It was solely because of the eddy. We do not purpose to do this again."

Judge Irvine of Cornell: to-night wired to Manager Wise of the crew, offering to help square the course difficulty. Irvine is one of the board of stewards.

Besides the trouble over the course there is an entanglement over the tides. It is understood that the tide will be full height at 3:40 o'clock on the day of the race. If this is so, the oarsmen cannot understand how it will be possible to row a race for the fours in the midstream twenty minutes later. Coach Ten Eyck of the Syracuse it out. So that altogether there is no very general satisfaction over the preliminary arrangements.
